BACKGROUND.

I graduated from Macquarie University in Arts, winning the final year English prize. I then studied law at Sydney University, where I was a student member of the editorial board of the Sydney Law Review, before completing my LLB in 1996.

At the Bar, I specialise in administrative law, and I am a member of the administrative law committee of the Law Council of Australia.

I have a special interest in appearing for health professionals in disciplinary matters in all courts and tribunals, and at inquests.
